Halcyon: 1. a bird said by the ancients to breed in a floating nest on a sea at winter solstice, and to charm wind and waves into calm for the purpose.
2. pleasingly or idyllically calm or peaceful.

Halcyon days: a time of peace and happiness.

If this is the calm, . . . can we deal with the storm? Like the Halcyon, we will someday soar, but for now, we can recall time spent at Swarthmore. Perhaps they are not carefree, but these days are likely to have provided fun, friends, and memories. Within the following pages are the times, places, and people that have contributed to the Halcyon days we will remember.

SECRET LIFE

Living in Willets is . . .

Like having 25 brothers and sisters.

House of the three floor beer bong.

Being yanked out of your room and dragged to Tarble on a Friday night only to discover you still have the Marx-Engels
Reader in your hand.

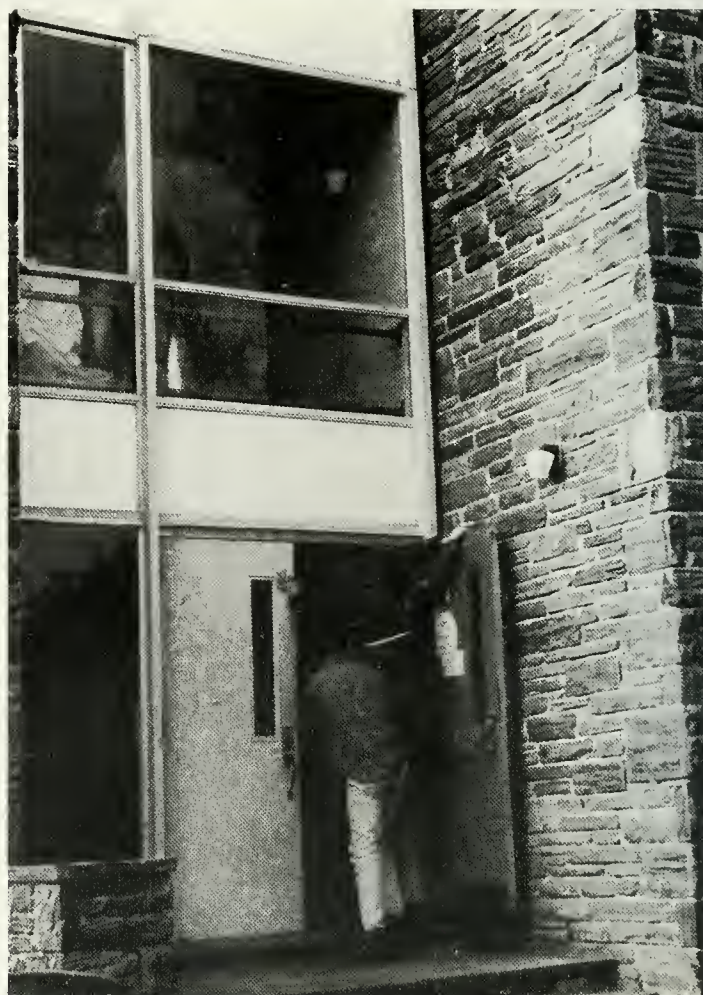

Tunnel vision with a nightmare at the other end.

Mixing a beer with a Margarita and spilling it on your skirt.

Good for seeing how stupid you acted your freshman year and realizing it's time to grow up!

Listening to your sexual fantasies come to fruition through your neighbors!

Living in Worth/Lodges is . . .

Silence . . . and Late Night!

Living in DanaWell is . . .

Learning how to scrape Ginkgo berries off your feet . . . like being a mouse in a psych experiment, only there's no cheese at the end & you don't get shocked (at least not as often) . . . better than a pillow fight on a Sunday morning before church . . . it's like biting into a York Peppermint pattie . . .

Living in Parrish is . . .

Easy access . . . hot (in all senses of the word) . . . like a phone call from Mom . . . not just for breakfast anymore!

Parrish Second East

Living in Wharton is . . .

Feelin' groovy . . . flashing lights from A section to F section . . . during Ginko season, like living in a Willets bathroom during a perpetual weekend . . . tripping over a cobblestone and landing flat on your face when you're completely sober!

Living in Mary Lyon is . . .

Using Parrish Parlors as a base camp . . . crossing the tundra at 8 am . . . almost like living at Swarthmore . . . going to be a Phys Ed credit next year . . . better than a war; it's better than a cold bath with someone you dislike . . . just too fresh.

Living in Roberts is . . .

Telling your friends to let the phone ring 30 times before hanging up when they call you.

Living in Mertz is . . .

An unanswered question!

Living in Pittenger is . . .

. . . I think the name says it all . . .

. . . Pitt:Main Campus as the Suburbs:Philly . . .

. . . Like living in Grand Central Station when you're blind: you can't see all the people but you can hear them . . .

. . . shaving your legs in a shower stall built for Twiggy . . .

. . . or isn't . . .

. . . understandable but misguided . . .

SHIRAZ

I was not a modern man, nor an old-fashioned one either. I had escaped time altogether, and went my way . . . I had no objection to sentimentalities. I was glad to find a trace of anything like a feeling still remaining in my burned-out heart. So I let my memories of the old tavern and my attachment to the solid wooden chairs and the smell of smoke and wine and the air of use and wont and warmth and homeliness that the place had carry me away. There is beauty in farewells and a gentleness in their very tone.

William Tyron Baldwin III (Ty) English Literature

The horse thief was named Aldo Campione, an immigrant from the town of Teramo in the Ambruzzi. He'd come to America to seek his fortune and found work building the Barge Canal. But as a country soul he was distracted by an equine opportunity in the town of Coeymans, was promptly caught, jailed, transported to Albany for trial, and shot in the back escaping. His lesson to Francis was this: that life is full of caprice and missed connections, that thievery is wrong, especially if you get caught, that even Italians cannot outrun bullets, that a proffered hand in a moment of need is a beautiful thing. from Ironweed by William Kennedy

(It's late May . . . the final deadline is less than a week away . . . Cindy and Erin are waist deep in crumpled papers . . . it must be 90 degrees in the Halcyon office . . . they are 48 pages away from the freedom of summer.)

Cindy: Oh no. Erin I lost that check. I know. I know, you hate me.

Erin: No, I took care of that yesterday. Hey, have you seen the picture of the safewalkers?

Cindy: Oh. I did that layout last night. Did you call Mike about those missing pictures yet?

Erin: Yes, he pulled another miracle and called the plant. How are we going to figure out who these soccer players are?

Cindy: Hmm. I'll ask Mark at the fieldhouse. If he doesn't know I'll ask Pete, and then Pat will be able to fill in the blanks. Know what I hate the least. I mean like the most about doing this book?

Erin: Pride in knowing that we're documenting history and creating a record of our sophomore year at Swarthmore?

Cindy: Yeah, that too. but what I was going to say is that I've found there's a lot more to this school than class, food, and sleep.

Erin: Glad you finally noticed, but after a year of chaos, we still haven't been able to capture all of Swarthmore's daily drama. Hey, we're out of scotch tape.

Cindy: I think there's some in my desk. Wanna order out?

Erin: Ok, but you have to call. You know, Cind, I wouldn't mind if we never spent another minute together.

Cindy: No kidding. When you get to London will you take a picture of a cute little royal guard on a horse for me?

Erin: Tell you what, buy me a UCSD sweatshirt while you're in San Diego and we'll trade in the fall.

Cindy: Think we'll live to see the fall?

Erin: Have faith . . . only 45 more pages to go.

Oh, 'tis jesting, dancing, drinking Spins the heavy world around. If young hearts were not so clever, Oh, they would be young forever: Think
no more; 'tis only thinking Lays lads underground.

— A.E. Housman
